

Where are you keeping your money?

If you've never provided investment instructions for your retirement savings, your money will be invested in what's called a default fund. A default fund is a fund chosen by your employer for its members who have not provided investment instructions.

Your plan's default fund may not be the right choice for you.

If choosing individual investments is more than you can handle, don't worry, you can pick a simple, pre-built fund solution – then leave the rest to us.
